HOW TO CURE CONSUMPTION.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF DR. SCHENCK'S GREAT MEDICINES.—Will people never learn to know that a diseased liver and stomach necessarily disease the entire system? The plainest principles of common sense teach this and yet there are hundreds who ridicule the idea and continue in the course which almost inevitably brings them prematurely to the grave. Living as the majority of the people do, at complete variance with the laws of nature, it must be apparent to all that, sooner or later, nature will revenge herself. Hence we find that persons who indulge to excess in the use of very rich or indigestible food or intoxicating drinks, invariably pay a heavy penalty in the end. The stomach becomes disordered and refuses to act: the liver fails to perform its functions, dyspepsia and its attendant evils follow, and still the suffering individuals persist in clinging to the thoroughly exploded idea of the past. Dr. SCHENK'S medicines are recommended to all such. They bring sure and certain relief wherever they are used as directed, and all that is necessary to establish their reputation with every sitting man or woman in the lands a fair and impartial trial of them. Let those who are skeptical on this point, and who have permitted interested persons to prejudice them against these now celebrated remedies for consumption, discard their prejudices, and be governed by the principles of reason and common sense. If the system is disordered depend upon it, in nine cases out of ten the seat of the disorder will be found in the stomach and liver. To cleanse and invigorate the stomach and to stimulate the liver to healthy action, use

SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS.—The daily increasing demand for these pills in the best evidence of their value. Thousands upon thousands of boxes are sold daily. Why? Simply because they act promptly and efficiently Invalids who may not find it convenient to call on Dr. SCHENCK in person are informed that full and complete directions for use accompany each package of the MANDRAKE PILLS, PULMONIC SYRUP AND SEAWEED TONIC.—These medicines will cure consumption unless the lungs are so far gone that the patient is entirely beyond the reach of medical relief.

It may be asked by those who are not familiar with the virtues of these great remedies, "How do Dr. Schenck's medicines effect their wonderful cures of consumption?"

The answer is a simple one. They begin their work of restoration by bringing the stomach, liver and bowels into an active healthy condition. It is food that cures this formidable disease. SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS act on the liver and stomach, promoting healthy secretion, and removing the bile and slime which have resulted from the inactive or torpid condition of those organs, and of the system generally. This sluggish state of the body, and the consequent accumulation of the unhealthy substances named prevent the proper digestion of food, and, as a natural consequence creates disease, which results in prostration and finally in death.

SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP and SEAWEED TONIC, when taken regularly, mingle with the food, and the digestive organs, make good and rich blood, and as a natural consequence, give flesh and strength to the patient. Let the faculty say what it may, this is the only true cure for consumption; Experience has proved beyond the shadow of a doubt, and thousands are to-day alive and well who a few years since were regarded as hopeless cases, but who were induced to try Dr. SCHENCK'S remedies, and were restored to permanent health by their use.

One of the first steps the physician should take with a consumptive patient is to invigorate the system. Now how is this to be done? Certainly not by giving medicines that exhaust and enervate—medicines that impair instead of improve the functions of the digestive organs Doctor SCHENCK'S medicines cleanse the stomach and bowels of all substances which are calculated to irritate or weaken them. They create an appetite—promote healthful digestion—make good blood, and, as a consequence, they invigorate and strengthen the entire system and more especially those parts which are diseased If this cannot be done, then the case must be regarded as a hopeless one.

If the physician finds it impossible to make a patient feel hungry, if the deceased person cannot partake of good nourishing food and properly digest it, it is impossible that he can gain in flesh and strength; and it is equally impossible to bring a patient to this condition so long as the liver is burdened with diseased bile, and the stomach laden with unhealthy slime.

Almost the first request made to the physician by a consumptive patient is that he will prescribe medicines that will allay the cough, night sweats and chills, which are the sure attendants on consumption. But this should not be done, as the cough is only an effort of nature to relieve itself, and the night sweats and chills are relished by the diseased lungs. The remedies ordinarily prescribed do more harm than good. They impair the functions of the stomach, impede healthy digestion, and aggravate rather than cure the disease.

There is, after all, nothing like facts which to substantiate a position, and it is upon facts that Dr. Schenck's relies. Nearly all who have taken his medicines in accordance with his directions have not only been cured of consumption, but from the fact that these medicines set with wonderful power upon the digestive organs, patients thus cured speedily gain flesh. Cleansing the system of all impurities, they lay the foundation for a solid, substantial structure. Restoring these organs to health, they create an appetite. The food is properly assimilated the quantity of food is not only increased, but is made rich and strong and in the face of such a condition of the system all disease must be banished.

Full directions accompany each of the medicines, so that it is not absolutely necessary that patients should see Dr. SCHENCK personally, unless they desire to have their lungs examined. For this purpose he is at his office, No. 15 North Sixth St., corner of Commerce, Phila., every Saturday, from 9 A. M. until 1 P. M.

Advice is given without charge, but for a thorough examination with the Inspirometer the charge is $3.

Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic each, $1 50 per bottle, or $7 50 a half dozen. Mandrake Pills 25 cents a box. For sale by all druggists. Ap. 12 1y.

Our Duty and Destiny as a Nation.

BY H. C. B.

SECOND PAPER.

INTEMPERANCE.

Then there is intemperance, an evil of such magnitude as to threaten the very existence of our civil institutions, and if something can not be done to arrest its progress, our progress as a nation must and will be arrested. Now the question is frequently asked, how shall we avert the pending danger with which our loved institutions are threatened by such gigantic evils? If the majority of our people were all prompted by the pure spirit of the Gospel, not only the great evils we have enumerated, but all others, would melt away under its genial light and heat. But such is not the fact; nor does history leave a record of any nation of whom it might be said the majority were good, and though we hope to be, we can not yet claim for a majority that disinterested goodness which would secure a faultless administration of our civil institutions But fallen and depraved though we are, there is no ground for despair, when we see that the God of Providence has, in all ages, governed the human family outside his church by principles of our nature, such as self-love, self-esteem, ambition, avarice, cowardice, &c.; and it often happens that a corrupt individual is not as bad a citizen when governed by two bad principles in antagonism as when moved by one of them. Thus the God of Providence as well as of grace always acts upon man agreeably to the laws of mind, by the presentation of motives adapted to the end in view; and were it not so, the human family, in their unrestrained madness and folly, would rush into universal destruction, and leave our planet to revolve in space a depopulated mass. But when the avaricious man counts the costs of criminal courts, prisons and penitentiaries, what results from strong drink, he may from motives of self interest join in the suppression of the traffic. When the coward looks upon intemperance as an enemy to his peace, and in view of his own weakness, may join in removing the insidious temptation out of his way. The ambitious man will join hands with that respectable part of the community who are earnestly laboring for the suppression of drunkenness in the land. But the christian is bound from motives of a higher order to labor earnestly for not only the suppression of drunkenness but for that of all crime, and thus from divers motives men may be brought to harmonious action.

The grand difficulty is to concentrate action promptly by such countless motives and bring them to bear against threatened danger from any quarter. We deem this difficult though it may appear quite possible. When any evil rises to great magnitude and threatens the self-interest of all, all, or a majority, aided by motives of benevolence, may so far unite as to crush out that particular evil. Thus slavery was planted upon our southern coast by foreign enemies to humanity and to our peace, and not until the evil had grown to alarming magnitude and had become so insatiable and exorbitant in its demands as to rouse our nation from its lethargy, and prompted from divers motives, with a united power seldom equaled, the cruel institution was crushed out forever, and our national disgrace was washed away by the blood of hundreds of thousands of the truest patriots that ever faced death for the extension of human liberty. But our success would have been impossible had not old party lines been merged in that powerful current of patriotism which seldom fails to conquer false antagonism.

And now, if we would save our beloved country from disgrace and ruin, we must again lay aside those old party names, too often employed to deceive the unwary, select the most dangerous evil, present all lawful motives to the diversified faculties and principles of human nature, concentrate all our powers in untiring efforts, and that evil must, under the smiles of Providence, fall before such irresistible power, and every other moral evil must grow weaker before such a healthy influence; and each of our great national enemies shall be rooted out one after another, and our inestimable rights and privileges shall be secured, and handed down, pure and uncorrupted, to the latest generation, a beacon light to benighted nations, regardless of the dying groans of tyrants.

Whilst it is our duty to declare conseless war against all insidious and open enemies of our race and our country, the question may be asked:—Against which of them shall we concentrate our united force, in order to crush it out forever, and remove it out of our way, in order that we strike down other evils in succession, and free our land, the last hope of the world, from the cruel bondage with which it is threatened? Now, was it our province to answer this momentous question, we would direct all your forces against Intemperance, because it is at open war upon us; it is already permeating society in all its ramifications with its insidious poison; it is even now carrying thousands annually down to untimely graves, and demands the immediate attention of patriots, philanthropists and christians. Your correspondent has been in this battle-field for over half a century; for many years after he had declared open war against this monster of iniquity he was left to battle alone for the principle of entire abstinence. Subsequently, associated with a few choice spirits, he has fought for the suppression of drunkenness till his weapons of warfare are all either broken or nearly worn out, and he must soon leave the field and the good cause in stronger hands, under the direction of a wise and benevolent Providence. And on leaving the field, he would not weary you with the appalling statistics which truth would justify. You know from high official authority that in a single year [1868] more money was spent in the United States for strong drink than would pay half of our National debt. You know that in but a few past years more human life was destroyed by strong drink than by the late cruel war. You know that more widows and orphans have been made such by intemperance than by war, famine and pestilence altogether. And you all know who have attended to the records of criminal courts, prisons and penitentiaries; that millions of your hard-earned money have been spent in defense of the peace of society against the appalling effects of drunkenness; and doubtless many of you have trembled in the hearing of the threats and profane imprecations of the poor maniacs, made such by strong drink, as well as that corrupt self-interest by which a few are prompted to poison the morals of our community for sake of gain. We must present such a united front as will secure success, or all is forever lost, and we are doomed to listen to the deathknell of our loved institutions, and weep over the last hope of poor, trodden down humanity.

There stands, unmolested, distilleries by perjury and fraud cheating our government annually out of hundreds of thousands of dollars, darkening the very heavens with their smoke, spreading over the land thick clouds of moral darkness, daring the thunders of Divine justice to shiver to fragments our glorious institutions, and roll us back into anarchy, with all its horrors.—They are still sending forth ten thousand streams of liquid death, poisoning the heart's blood of the nation, and spreading over the land a moral winter, which threatens the very bases of our free institutions. Shall we fold our arms in apathetic sluggishness in presence of such portentous danger, now threatening our children and our grand-children?

Yonder you see our gin palaces and dens of moral putrescence, scattered thickly over town and country, in the enjoyment of undisturbed legal rights to kill and destroy an indefinite number of their fellow-citizens annually, if, like young Spartan thieves, they can do it without detection. You may have seen those sinks of iniquity disgorging themselves of their motley contents, in order that they may have a free fight upon our streets, where more like dogs than rational beings, you may see them parting, one with a broken arm, another with an eye gouged out, another with his nose bitten off, most of them maimed and bleeding, and yonder a poor, old man staggering home, his tongue vibrating only because it was accustomed to vibrate in idiotic accents; and there goes another, flying in all the horrors of mania potu, screaming and flying as he believes from serpents, hobgoblins and demons, to drive a trembling wife and children from their humble dwelling place to take refuge for the night under the broad canopy of heaven.

"'Tis here they learn
The road that leads from competence and peace
To indigence and rapine; till at last
Society, grown weary of the load,
Shakes off encumbered lap and casts them out."

But if you desire a condensed view of the baleful results of our cruel license system, follow that poor, deluded criminal into court, hear the witness and his final sentence, and ask yourselves if you are innocent of one of the cruelest murders upon criminal record

The court is called, the prisoner is brought, and the in, a jury is called, trial commenced. The prisoner, a tall, fine looking man, except those mingled feelings of guilt and despair betrayed by his countenance.

First witness, Mr. A——, the land lord, (an appropriate title,)—a large, portly and pompous man, with heavy gold chain and a number of large rings of the same metal upon his fingers—sworn and examined. How long have you known the prisoner at the bar?

About fifteen years. He was when I first knew him a very sober and respectable man; he owned a good farm; the farm is now mine. The prisoner is very poor and a confirmed drunkard. For several years he was seldom at my house; his visits became more frequent, and lately he would lie out whole nights. I sold liquor to him as long as he had money; it is not six months since he drank the last of his farm; he still came frequently and would get drunk somebow with his former companions. The last time he was there his wife came for him and entreated him to go home; she said their children were crying for something to eat and there was not a bite of anything for them; he cursed her and her "brats;" she wept bitterly and cried for God to have mercy upon them. He staggered to the stove, seized the poker, struck her upon the head, broke her skull, and she fell dead upon the floor. Two of those jurors and two of those witnesses signed my certificate for tavern license; I sell liquor by law, as authorized by your honors.

Second witness, the landlord's son, examined. I am eighteen years old; I attend bar for my father; I never sell liquor to drunkards after their money is spent, nor after they are dead drunk; no, I never sell liquor to minors who have no means to pay for it; I never sell on Sunday to any persons who would expose us; I was never so ungallant as to refuse liquor to females who could pay for it. O yes, I sold more liquor to the prisoner than to any other person because he had money plenty. Well, the way he got money was this; to make it convenient, my father would lend him a hundred dollars at a time and take his note from time to time, and in this way we got his farm. I saw the prisoner strike his wife with the poker, I saw her fall dead upon the floor. They had six children; they are all now in the poor-house.

Third witness, B——, with his arm in a sling, examined. O yes, I know the prisoner well enough; I guess you would know him too, if he had broken your arm. Yes, I seen him kill his wife, that I did, and he struck her mighty hard. O yes, he and me often drunk together till it was late; he was a right jolly fellow when he got under way. Yes, I did sign Mr. A's certificate for tavern license and I would do so again; two of them jurors did so too; you know all who sign such papers are recognized by this court as respectable citizens. Yes, Mr. A. give us not only one drink for signing, but as much as we could hold till midnight, and I never had a finer jollification in all my life. Yes, I guess them two jurors were there as full of fun as any of us, and one of them judges, too, as jolly a fellow as ever you saw. No, we did not get so very drunk, but we felt good.

Fourth witness, with but one eye, and one ear, limping upon one leg, clothed in rags, under an old slouched hat, examined. Yes, I saw the prisoner kill his wife; I told him to knock her down, for she had no business to come blurting after him into a decent bar-room to spoil all our fun and telling him his children were starving.—You have no business to ask how I lost my eye and my ear; they were my own property and I had a right to do what I pleased with them. I am not bound to tell you what became of my fine property; if I chose to spend it in a short and merry life what is that to you. You have no business to ask how many drinks I took to day; I will tell you just as much as I please, and I never will, like temperance fools, sign away my right to drink when I please. Yes, I did sign Mr. A's certificate for license and I will do it again; he is a real clever fellow, and he gave us an fine a jollification for doing so as ever you saw. No, Bill did not knock me down, but I knocked C. under the table, where he lay snoring like a hog till morning.

Fifth witness came staggering into court, slip shod, clothed in the habiliments of wretchedness, smeared with blood, and holding by a post, he said: I guess I come from Mr. A's tavern this morning. I guess I took a little of the o-be joyful just to cl-clear my li-deas so as I m-might tell you in good lan-language, how as the pris-prisoner killed his his-his-foo-of a wi-wife.

The Court—Sheriff take that witness to jail.

Witness—The de-devil you will.

The testimony closed. The Court charged the jury strongly against the pri-oner. The jury after retiring a short time brought in a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree.

The prisoner was commanded to stand up and give reasons, if he had any, why sentence of death should not be pronounced against him.

He rose. The fountain of tears was dried up, his breast heaved as if too contracted for the swelling of a breaking heart, and said, he had no reasons to give, for though convicted by the testimony of witnesses of the most impure lips, I am guilty of the cruel murder of one of the most lovely wives. I drew her out of an affectionate mother's bosom, and from under the protection of an indulgent father. She was fairer and more lovely in fact than Venus in fable. I vowed in the presence of God at the hymenial altar, that I would cherish and protect her in sickness and in health till separated by death. Ours was a sweet home, rendered still more sweet and joyful by those dear pledges of conjugal affection, with which our board was surrounded, who cheered us with music more sweet than that of all the birds of the forest. Thus our nights and days were spent for years in lovely accord, until, whilst going right on my way, I was lured into that den of demons incarnate, by that cruel monster, the landlord, (perverted epithet,) who has born testimony against me. His insidious snare was so artfully laid and his machinery so seductive that I fell step by step, and at every step losing part of my power of resistance, till all was gone, and until he had by fraud and falsehood filched from me the last dollar, beggared my family, maddened my brain, and prepared me for the consummation of crime—the murder of poor Sarah. Her head an overflowing fountain of tears, her tender hand upon my shoulder, and the last prayer to God for her cruel husband upon her lips, when, alas, prompted by surrounding demons, I struck the fatal blow. And now, O wretched man that I am, would to God I had died for thee, O dearest of women, and for those dear children orphanized, and brought to poverty and disgrace by my cruelty!

Alas, where am I? I see the red-hot thunderbolt of insulted Justice ready to be hurled upon me. I see the flashing frowns of an avenging God! "O that the mountains and the rocks would fall on me and hide me from the face of Him that sitteth on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb."

If you employ all the rhetoric of the school, with all their eastern imagery in description of hell, it would fall far short of the internal flames now burning out my very heart. Alas that I had ever been born, for I am forever undone. I can give no reasons why the death sentence should not be pronounced against me; but I can give good reasons why I should not be suspended alone between heaven and earth, as if a miscreant unworthy of either.

And what shall I say to the dense and motley crowd with which this court-room is filled to witness my deep degradation? The majority of you have by your votes elected as guardians of the peace and safety of the community a set of men who have not yet learned the first lessons of moral duty. Some of you who have lent your aid in dragging me down from the dignity of manhood to the lowest step of human degradation and sorrow, can coldly raise your impudent and brazen faces, the index of obdurate hearts, to witness my fall. Remember, you are hurrying down the steep declivity over which you precipitated my fall, and that my fate will soon be yours if you continue in your present course. But I see others who loved me whilst I sustained the dignity of manhood, who earnestly entreated me to turn from my folly, and wept over my obdurate madness, and have hearts yet to weep over my final fall. You are the salt of the earth for which our institutions are yet preserved.

There is your jury, some of whom prayed your honors to grant you bloated landlord license to kill by his hellish profession his fellow mortals with impunity; others of them came out of last night's debauch to convict me, and should I go to hell alone?—There are your associate judges, one of whom disgraced our legislative hall by his speech and by his vote against the passage of a law to set bounds to the liquor seller's right of human destruction; and the other did by his example precipitate my rapid fall—and should I go to hell alone? There is your Prothonotary, whose glowing face is an index of the burning flame within, a fit subject for spontaneous combustion, now snoring away the fumes of last night's debauch; he too facilitated my fall, and should I go to hell alone? There is your Sheriff into whose hands you are about to commit me, and will be ordered to launch me into an awful eternity; he has purchased more votes with whiskey than any man in the county. He can drink deeper in the cup of dissipation, sit later, and sing more vulgar, bacchanalian songs than any of his boon companions. He too almost forced me down the rugged declivity, and ought I to go to hell alone?

Your honor once moved high in intellectual circles, but never manifested a single aspiration for morality. You have catered to the lowest of the fallen of our race, for whose approbation you refused to inquire after the character of the twelve citizens who prayed your honors to grant a license to that bloated and sordid landlord to kill me and others; nay, more, you know that the majority of those who signed his certificate, were not only not good and respectable citizens, but the very scum of society; that they had fallen below the level of humanity, and that in solitude you would neither have trusted your horse nor your head in their hand. You are fast sinking to their level in crime; the ermine which you have long disgraced will soon fall from your shoulder, you will soon stand for trial before that upper court, too pure to be corrupted and too wise to be deceived, of whom it cannot be said, as might be said of you, and was said to a judge not more corrupt than you, "If it were possible to collect all the innocent blood that you have shed (or caused to be shed) in one great reservoir, your honor could swim in it." But remember if you respect not, you will be irrevocably doomed to witness the work of your own hands, where the waves of dark damnation over rolls. Now, pronounce that sentence, for I see I must go to hell alone.

Sentence of death was then pronounced. Exhausted nature could endure no more; the prisoner sank to the floor and was carried for the last time to jail, thence soon to be taken to the scaffold.

The Wrong Man Poulticed.

The following story, which we do not remember to have seen in print, may be old, but it is received as true:

At a famous and fashionable watering-place, a gentleman one night was suddenly seized in bed with an excruciating pain in the stomach, which neither brandy, No. 6, nor any other remedy could remove. His wife, after trying a number of things in vain, and having exhausted all her stock of remedies, left her husband's bedside for the purpose of getting a warm application. Guided on her return by a light which she saw shining in a chamber, and which she supposed was the one just left, she softly entered, and was not a little surprised to find her patient apparently in a deep slumber. However, thinking he might still be suffering, she gently raised the bed-clothes, &c., and laid the scalding poultice upon a stomach—but not the stomach of her husband which no sooner touched the body of the person, than he, greatly alarmed, and writhing under the torture of the burning application, shouted: "Hallo! hallo! what in the name of heaven and earth are you about there?" then, with one spring from his bed, he made for the door, and, rushing down stairs, declared, in a frenzy of excitement, that some one had poured a shovel of hot coals upon him. The woman, overcome with excitement and alarm, gave a frantic scream, which brought her husband hurriedly in from the next room to her rescue. The husband was so much excited, and also so much amused with the singular mistake and the ridiculous position of his better half, that he forgot all his pains; but early next morning he, his wife and trunks left for parts unknown. The poulticed gentleman still retains the handkerchief—a beautiful linen fabric, with the lady's name on it, which he considers of rare value.

Should Women Vote?

The majority of the female portion of the inhabitants of these United States do not desire the right of suffrage. Woman is physically incompetent to perform the duties of a voter. If woman were to attempt to perform the duties incumbent upon man it would destroy all that pleasing modesty, delicacy and refinement, which in woman is so agreeable to the sight of the sterner sex, and which places her in so great a degree above man in this respect. If we confer upon her the right to cast her vote and thus put her upon a political footing with man in this one respect, we must place her upon an equal footing in every other respect. If we give her the right to vote she then has the right to nominate and if she possesses the right to nominate she can nominate any voter for office, and having the privilege of nominating any voter for office, she can nominate a woman for office, and not only for one office, but for any office in the gift of the people, be it for School Director or for President—Road supervisor or Governor. If they become voters they would be subject to the conscription draft in times of war.

Just imagine you see the ladies on a march, armed with "Spencers" and knapsacks filled with several days rations strapped upon their pretty shoulders. Would they not look splendid—for awhile, and then where would they get their looking-glasses where with to view their pretty faces and arrange their disordered waterfalls. Verily, they would have to use Narcissus' glass. Would not their Grecian bends look gay upon a retreat?

No,—woman's peace is at home among her household gods.

Let not our so called spirit of reform deprive us of that most delightful of all our earthly pleasures of sensitive, charming, modest and refined woman. There is a certain roughness of character about man which would gradually and insensibly steal over that of woman in attempt to perform the duties of a man, and which would become her. It would destroy all that native modesty which most woman possess in such an eminent degree.—God never intended woman to fill the place of man any more than he intended her to be a man, else he would have made her a man "tew wuns" and not left man to finish his work.

Woman has her own peculiar sphere in life, and in that she is all powerful and transcendant, but as soon as she leaves that sphere she loses that which makes her appear so beautiful in the eyes of the world—her womanly character.

Why,—woman has enough of life's labors to perform, now, at home, why, then should we load upon her shoulders other and heavier burdens—for with her vote would come labors innumerable. Instead of the right of suffrage being a blessing upon women it would be an absolute curse—instead of being a pleasure—instead of adding one joy to her happiness, it would detract from it—it would be a positive evil. If woman were to take that interest in politics, which she would had she a vote, where would she find time to scrub, to wash, to sew, to darn, and to do the 1,000 other little things which only the deft fingers of woman know properly how to do? It might suit a few in the higher classes of society, some of the Codfish Aristocracy, in this one respect, but it would not suit the majority of the ladies of our land.

If it would make them happier, if it would add one particle of happiness to their life, if it would ease their life of one of the many little burdens which all of them have to bear, I say, if it would do this, I would say LET THEM VOTE. As I remarked before the great mass of the ladies in our country do not wish to vote.

It is only a few fanatics upon the backneyed subject of woman's rights, who are agitating this question of woman's suffrage in order to give themselves prominence in the news of the day and in the history of the nation, and to make for themselves a reputation, and some of them are gaining a notoriety, but rather an unenviable one I am afraid.

No—the number of strong-minded women is too large already, and it would be fearfully increased had the ladies the right of suffrage. "Let us have pence"—upon this subject at least

N. B.—Please consider the subject exhausted. QUIS.

"THAT'S very singular," said a young lady to a gentleman who had just kissed her. "Oh! well, my dear Miss," was the reply, "I will soon make it plural." And the villain did.

STUBBS said to one of his debtors: "Isn't it about time you paid me that little bill?" "My dear sir," was the consoling reply, "it is not a question of time, it is a question of money."

JONES never knew a more vengeful individual than Brown, who, in the exuberance of his rage at some one who offended him, said, "I'll have revenge! I'll give his little boy a tin trumpet."

THAT chap who was "lonely since his mother died" is all right now, his father having married a widow with fifteen children. The old lady and the children manage to make it lively enough for him.

"Sammy run to the store and get some sugar." "Excuse me, ma; I'm somewhat indisposed this morning. Send father, and tell him to bring a paper of tobacco along."

A dandy inquired at a fruit stand, "Are these apples fit for hogs to eat?" "Try 'em and see," said the woman.

How did Adam get out of the garden of Erden? He was snaked out.

WM. LEWIS, HUGH LINDSAY, } Editors.

The "Globe" has the largest number of readers of any other paper published in the county. Advertisers should remember this.

THE State Medical Society of Pennsylvania, at Philadelphia, decided not to touch the question of the admission of females to the Medical College. The Academy of Natural Sciences, in the same city, with more propriety and good sense, have admitted three ladies to full membership.

A VIOLENT earthquake has visited the State of Oaxaca, Mexico. Its effects were especially disastrous on Oaxaca, the capital of the State, where 103 persons were killed, and 53 wounded. A third of the city was rendered uninhabitable. The earthquake extended to the mines, where eleven men were killed and many wounded. Buildings in all parts of the State were destroyed, and reports of additional deaths were coming in.

THE report of the massacre of the Jews at Roumania, which we publish ed recently, has proved to be a canard. That is good news for the Jews, but the getter-up of such a villainous piece of news should be, banished from the region of newspaperdom. The rumor had the effect, however, of drawing universal attention to a town that probably would never been heard of outside of Turkey.

THE six Chinese companies, of San Francisco, under whose general superintendence the entire business of Chinese emigration to this country is conducted, have prepared a circular advising against any further immigration of their countrymen to the United States. We opine that the cause of this policy is the prejudice which has been aroused against this industrious and ingenious class of foreigners among the conceited and avaricious natives. In California a Chinaman is treated like the black man in some of the middle States.

GREAT excitement prevailed last week among the Republican politicians of Philadelphia, at the nominating convention. So high did the fever get that the factions ran counter to each other, and, a general hub-bub ensued, in which desks were overturned and chandeliers broken. It is needless to add that mob ruled by force, and that mob candidates were nominated. If we hear of an inglorious defeat of the Republican ticket in Philadelphia next fall, our readers will know that bad men have been the cause.

WE are in receipt of the advanced sheets of "A Constitutional view of the late war between the States; its causes, character, conduct, and result," by Alexander Stephens, ex-Vice President of the Confederacy. This work is considered the most perfect of any written, and should find its way into every household of the land where there is not already a similar work. The book is sold by subscription only.—Agents are wanted in every county.—Address National Publishing Company, 26 South 7th street, Philadelphia.

A BILL has passed the House which reduces the Internal Revenue taxes $15,000,000, and the Tariff duties $20,000,000. This reduction is being made in the face of the fact that we are paying off the national debt at the rate of one hundred millions a year. A strict enforcement of the laws, an honest collection of the revenue, and an economical administration of all the affairs of the government, accounts for this reduction, and the people have good cause for rejoicing that the Executive of the nation is having his hope realized and the policy of the government faithfully executed.

PRACTICAL wisdom is beginning to exhibit itself in the South. The planters having tried the experiment and finding that it pays, are now considering the propriety and practicability of erecting factories and manufacturing the next cotton crop themselves, instead of sending it to Europe and selling it for 10 or 12 cents per pound and buying it back manufactured at from 75 cents to $1 00 per pound. There is hope for the South yet. Her cotton crop, if manufactured at home, would be a source of immense wealth, and her citizens would be characterized for more industry than they are at present.

SOME of the Democratic newspaper writers are pitching into Grant for taking a fishing excursion. If he had staid in Washington he would have been accused of bartering for the Dominigo accession, or something else. Let him go where he will, or, stay where he may, his opponents will find some scandal to lay before the public concerning him. But it is enough to know that sensible people will admire the independence of Grant's character so far that the rights and liberties which all citizens can enjoy, are not abridged because he is President. Gen Grant is too useful a man to allow the perplexing cares of his office to absorb his thoughts to an injurious extent; and we would advise his calumniators to drop their pens this hot weather and take up the rod and line.

Popery the Bugbear of Little Minds.

BY R. J. A.

"And I say to thee: that thou art Peter, and upon this Rock I will build my church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it.—St. Matthew, 16th Chap, 18th verse.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—In the last issue of the Globe we find a very interesting history of the evils that are now afflicting the great Republic. Some ignorant bungler calling himself 'H. C. B.' calls your special attention to Popery. He tells you that Pio Nono is the prince of darkness, or rather a subject of the same, prince. He cautions you about permitting him to carry out his nefarious designs; he tells you if you allow the dogma of infallibility to be defined that the scenes of the "Reign of Terror" in France will be re-enacted in this country. What control have you or he in the definition of articles of faith? How dare he or any body else to raise their voice against this Ecumenical Council? Will the definition of the Infallibility of the Pope interfere with the liberty of an American citizen?

It is high time for Catholics, if they have any spirit, if they have the spirit of God, to raise their indignant voice against all the machinations which have been set on foot in order to excite prejudice against them. Does "H. C. B." imagine in his insanity that Know Nothingism can be revived in this country? Let him try it, and look out for the consequences.

It is painfully certain that the young noble American mind is corrupted and vitiated by unprincipled men who represent the Catholic church as an abominable institution. You tell us we want to take the Bible from you. Foolish assertion. Who gave you the Bible? Did not the Catholic Church exist prior to any portion of the New Testament? We tell the American people (and particularly the people of Huntingdon) that this uproar about the Bible is all moonshine. If the Bible be the written word of God, if it be "the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth," why does it cause contradictions? Why does it tell some that there are three persons in God whilst the Unitarian believes that you cannot prove the Trinity from Scriptures? Is it not evident that it requires an authority to interpret the Bible, to explain its meaning to prevent heresies? What is that authority? It is the living, speaking, infallible authority of the "Catholic Church."

Previous to this time you had it all your own way. You taught the young American mind that Popery was an institution of the evil one. If you are a minister of the gospel writing under the signature of "H. C. B." you are invited to a discussion of this subject by the writer of these few lines, either publicly in oral discussion, or through the medium of the press; but we have every reason to fear that you will retire into the background; that you are only a bagfull of wind, and that you will realize the proverb, "Parturient montes, nascetur ridiculus mus."

The writer of these few observations has traveled a considerable portion of the habitable globe and he has no difficulty in stating that he has seen more prejudice in Huntingdon during the few months which he has been located here, than he has ever seen before even in the space of five and twenty years. Come out, whoever you are, meet the writer of these few remarks in any honorable discussion. If you are a minister of the gospel defend your principles, if you have any. Perhaps you are "a Protestant." Tell us what do you mean by "a Protestant." We tell you, if you are a learned man, that Protestantism is a negation and that there is no middle course. You must be either a Catholic or an Infidel.

This is not the first attack which has been made upon us at Huntingdon. We tell you, whoever you are, it is labor in vain. We have acquired a position in America which neither you nor the evil one can take from us. We are not afraid nor ashamed of our position, and therefore lest there should be any mistake regarding the writer of these few lines we give our initials,

Letter from Nebraska.

ASHLAND, Nebraska, June 9, '70.

MESSRS. EDS:—As no doubt many of your readers are interested in western news, I have concluded to write a short letter, giving facts coming under my own observation.

Friday morning, May 27th, found me enjoying a pleasant walk through the streets of Chicago. At ten o'clock I took the Chicago & Northwestern train for Omaha City. I was surprised to see so much prairie unimproved, lying quite near to Chicago; much of it, however, is very flat and level, so much so that it will require draining to make it profitable farm land. I passed on through Illinois—through many beautiful and fast growing towns, through many delightful farms, over creek and river, until I came to the great father of waters. I crossed the river at Clinton, Iowa.—Now I am upon Iowa soil, fast wending my way towards the Missouri river. The land lying between the Mississippi river and Cedar Rapids is nearly all under good cultivation. Judging from the appearance of the crop the land is certainly good. The western part of Iowa is not very much settled; for miles you will see no improvements. The land is good and will produce well, if once brought under cultivation.

We now come to Council Bluffs, a city among the hills, destined to be quite a city in the future; it lies quite near the Missouri river, and has five or six railroads running to it. We now cross the river to Omaha City, the starting point of the great Union Pacific railroad leading to California, and enjoy the cool, stirring wind of the Nebraska climate. Taking the train at Omaha for Tremont, I travel through a country just beginning to settle. The farmers through parts of Nebraska are generally very poor; a great many came to this State poor, have taken homesteads, broken the prairie, and will soon have good farms. Traveling a distance of 35 miles south of the Platte river, about half of the farm-houses are built of prairie sod; others are dug into the ground and covered with earth. In building sod houses they lay one sod upon another as you do brick, until the building is high enough. There are no fences in Nebraska; stock is not allowed to run at large; they must be herded or laiated. Lumber for building and fuel is scarce, but railroads are stretching out in every direction, and the people will soon be able to get lumber at reasonable prices.

There is not much fruit but the land is good and very productive. The chief products now raised are wheat and corn. Water north of Platte is good and plenty, at a depth of 14 feet. Upon the whole Nebraska is a pretty fair State.

Torn To Pieces.

Terrible Affair in a Travelling Circus—Three Men Devoured Alive by Lions.

The usually quiet little village of Middletown, Missouri, was lately thrown into a painful fever of excitement by an awful catastrophe which occurred to the band lately attached to James Robinson & Co's circus and animal show, and led by Prof. M. C. Sexton.

Upon starting out from Cincinnati for the season, the management determined to produce something novel in the way of a band chariot, and conceived the idea of mounting the band upon the colossal den of performing Numidian lions, and which would form one of the principal and most imposing features of the show.

Although repeatedly warned by Professor Sexton that he deemed the cage insecure and dangerous in the extreme, the mangers still persisted in compelling the band to ride upon it. On the fatal morning of the 12th, the band took their places and the procession commenced to move amid the shouts of the multitude of rusties who had assembled to witness the grand pageant, and hear the enlivening strains of music. Not a thought of danger was entertained by any one, but the awful catastrophe was about to occur.

As the driver endeavored to make a turn in the streets the leaders became entangled, and threw the entire team into confusion; and he lost control of them, and becoming frightened they broke into a violent run. Upon the opposite side of the street the forewheel of the cage came in contact with a large rock with such force as to cause the braces and stanchions which supported the roof to give away, thereby precipitating the entire band into the awful pit below.

For an instant the vast crowd were paralyzed with fear, but for a moment only, and then arose such a shriek of agony as was never heard before.—The awful groans of terror and agony which arose from the poor victims who where being torn, lacerated by the frightful monsters below, was heartrending and sickening to a terrible degree. Every moment some one of the band would extricate themselves from the debris and leap over the sides of the cage to the ground with a wild spring and faint away upon striking the earth, so great was their terror. But human nature could not stand and see men literally devoured before their very eyes, for there were willing hearts and strong arms ready to render every assistance necessary to rescue the unfortunate victims of this shocking calamity.

A hardware store which happened to stand opposite was invaded by the request of the noble-hearted proprietor, and pitchforks, crowbars and long bars of iron, and in fact every available weapon was brought into requisition. The side doors of the cage were quickly torn from their fastenings, and then a horrible sight was presented to view. Mingled among the brilliant raiment of the poor unfortunates lay legs, arms, torn from their sockets and half devoured, while the savage brutes glared ferociously with their sickly, green-colored eyes upon the petrified crowd. Professor Charles White arrived at this moment, and gave orders in regard to extricating the dead and wounded, he well knowing it would be a difficult and dangerous undertaking to remove them from the infuriated monsters.

Stationing men with forks and bars at every available point, he sprang fearlessly into the den amid the savage moustors, and commenced raising the wounded, and passing them upon the outside to their friends. He had succeeded in removing the wounded, and was proceeding to gather up the remains of the lifeless, when the mammoth lion, known to showmen as Old Nero, sprang with a frightful roar upon his keeper, fastening his teeth and claws in him, in his neck and shoulders, lacerating him in a horrible manner. Professor White made three herculean efforts to shake the monster off, but without avail, and gave orders to fire upon him.

The contents of four of Colt's navies were immediately poured into the carcass of the ferocious animal, and he fell dead; and the brave little man, notwithstanding the fearful manner in which he was wounded, never left the cage until every vestige of the dead was carefully gathered together and placed upon a sheet, preparatory for burial. It was found that three of the lion who mounted the cage a short time before were killed outright, and four others terribly lacerated. The names of the killed are August Schoer, Conrad Freeiz, and Charles Greiner. Coffins were procured and an immediate burial determined upon, as the bodies were so frightfully torn and lacerated as to be unrecognizable to their most intimate friends. It was a melancholy day for Middletown, and a sadder day for the friends and companions of the deceased.

Of all that vast multitude who started out in the morning with anticipations of a glad holiday, few left for their homes with dry eyes after the triple funeral, for the entire community followed the remains to the quiet little cemetery. At midnight the carcass of the slain beast was quietly buried on the lot where was intended to be given the exhibition, but which was never accomplished. There is a terrible responsibility resting upon some one, which should be thoroughly investigated, and the guilty parties be brought to a quick and speedy punishment. The lions are the same ones which nearly cost Professor White his life two years ago, while travelling with the Thayer and Noyes party, and were known to be a very dangerous cage of animals.

At Peoria, Ill., a match game of base ball is to take place between nines composed of distillers on one side and government officials on the other.

A Sensation in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, June 16.—Great excitement exists here over the discovery of a poor demented creature named Herrigs, who, it appears, has been secretly imprisoned in the dwelling of his brother Joseph, corner of Fourth and Lombard streets for eighteen or twenty years. The first information of the horrible affair was communicated to the authorities by a young man living in an adjoining building, who saw a human nose protruding through a knothole in a board nailed across a small window in one of the apartments in the Herrig's house, and hearing a strange noise, an investigation was instituted, which brought to light a most horrible spectacle. On entering the room, five by eight feet, the officers discovered the poor imbecile seated on a rickety old chair, nearly naked, his only costume being a short petticoat, made of course canvass. His nervous system is entirely gone, and all that could be elicited from him was an unmeaning giggle. His reason was entirely dethroned. He was able to walk and move about, and at times seemed to have a vague conception of what was said to him. He stood up, sat down and opened his mouth in an automatic sort of a way truly horrible. The apartment was covered with filth and the stench was unbearable, and an old dilapidated sofa and a rickety chair were the only articles of furniture in the living tomb. From all appearances it is evident that this miserable idiot has lived in his own filth for the almost incredible period of a score of years. He was sent to the Alms House.

His brother Joseph was arrested and subsequently released on five thousand dollars bail. Joseph keeps a cigar store in the front part of the house and is said to be in easy circumstances One or two of the neighbors have an indistinct recollection of seeing a feeble minded young man of about twenty years of age about the house over eighteen years ago, since which time he has been missing. When the officers tried to enter the idiot's apartment they were resisted by an old crone of over eighty years of age, who said she was the mother of John. Her daughter, together with those already mentioned, were the only occupants of the house. Joseph is reticent and indisposed to throw any light on the case. There are various stories afloat, all of which tend to make the mystery insoluble.

UP IN A TORNADO.

During the past three weeks there has been a succession of tornadoes in the valley at Deer Lodge City, Montana, unpleasant as unprecedented. They last from one to three hours, and are succeeded by a perfect calm.—Their general direction is from northwest to southeast. The width of the storm track is not over a mile, the greatest violence being confined to a belt of 200 or 400 yards, crossing the valley diagonally a short distance below town, and occasionally the side current giving them a lively shaking up in the village. The first two wasted their fury on fences, trees, and moderate sized boulders, tossing them about like jack-straws, and just by way of variety, wrenched a couple of logs out of the Decker building, in the lower art of the town. But the third played a piece of diabolism not on the bills.

Mr. A. Elliott recently purchased the Hall farm on Cottonwood creek, a half mile from town. It has on it a double log house, one story, having a roof area of seventeen by forty feet.—On it there is a dirt roof. Mr. Elliott was engaged in re-roofing it with boards, and had it about completed on Saturday when the storm began. His son, a lad of a dozen years, was on one corner, and he on the comb. As the whirlwind dipped he called to his son to jump down, and Mr. Elliott clasped the comb projection of the boards to prevent being blown to the ground.—Just at the instant the entire roof, rafters and all, was lifted from the building, and raising with the whirlwind, sailed away, attaining an altitude of about forty feet at the greatest, and landing one hundred and eighty-nine feet from the house, where Mr. Elliott was dumped by the concussion; the roof performed a somersault over him, and was scattered in a thousand fragments over the valley. Strange as it may appear, Mr. Elliott is only slightly bruised. The lad was uninjured, the board roof gliding out from under him, leaving him sitting disconsolate on the dirt roof, while his father was abandoning him at the rate of sixty miles an hour. When it is considered that the roof contained 1200 feet of lumber, was nailed to heavy log rafters, and that the whole affair was carried 189 feet intact, some idea of the force of the whirlwind may be obtained. The distance is given by Mr. Chagost, who measured it immediately after the occurrence. The escape of Mr. Elliott was a miracle.

A horse was drowned in the river near Bloody Run, the other day. The river was high from recent rains, and two beartless colored men jumped on its back and endeavored to make the animal carry them across. It sank in the middle of the stream, and it was with difficulty the men escaped the same fate.

Alexander H. Stephens' Opinion of General Grant.

The ex-Vice President of the late Southern Confederacy, in the second volume of his history of the rebellion, just published, describes an interview with General Grant and gives his impression of the man in quite a different style usually employed toward political opponents. We quote as follows:—

"I was never so much disappointed in my life in my previously formed opinions, of either the personal appearance or bearings of any one about whom I had read and heard so much. The disappointment, moreover, was in every respect favorable and agreeable. I was instantly struck with the great simplicity and perfect naturalness of his manners, and the entire absence of every thing like affectation, show, or even the usual military air or mien of men in his position. He was plainly attired, sitting in a log-cabin, busily writing on a small table, by a kero sene lamp. It was night when we arrived. There was nothing in his appearance or surroundings which indicated his official rank. There were neither guards nor aids about him.—Upon Col. Babcock's rapping at his door, the response "Come in," was given by himself, in a tone of voice, and with a cadence which I can never forget. His conversation was easy and fluent, without the least effort or restraint. In this, nothing was so closely noticed by me as the point and terseness with which he expressed whatever he said. He did not seem either to court or avoid conversation, but whenever he did speak, what he said was directly to the point and covered the whole matter in a few words. I saw before being with him long that he was exceedingly quick in perception and direct in purpose, with a deal more of brains than tongue, as ready as that was at his command."

Three Children Killed by Lightning.

The Manterville (Miss.) Express of a recent date says:

Of all the late accounts of the loss of life by accident, none seems more sad and touching than that which happened in our own county on Saturday. The circumstances of the casualty were given us by a friend who lives not far from the place, and were substantially as follows:—The man's name is Peter De Sent. He lives in the east part of township of Ripley; has a wife and family of four children, a daughter married, and three boys, of the age of fourteen, ten, and eight respectively. It seems that the married daughter and her husband were at her home on the Saturday evening referred to. The three young boys retired early that evening, and were all occupying one bed temporarily arranged on the floor of a room adjoining that in which the parents were still sitting up and alone, occupied in conversation in relation to their children. But a few moments after the storm came, and almost the first thunder that was heard, and the first bolt that fell in the vicinity, struck the chimney of Mr. Sent's house, and the currents of the powerful destroyer were flashed all over the building. Mr. De Sent sprang from his seat immediately with the sad exclamation, "My children are all dead!" Indeed it was fearfully true! The two younger children were killed instantly. The oldest boy showed little signs of life when the parents reached the bedside—but one gasp, and he, too, was lifeless. The bed caught fire, and the children one by one were removed before the flames could be extinguished.

None other of the family were injured physically. The damages to the house are said to be slight and unimportant. The concussion of the stroke was so great as to stop the clock, and when noticed the hands still pointed out the minute (8 o'clock and 20 minutes) when the three children expired—a solemn record of a most solemn event.

Two Western Congressmen last week, lost $6,000 fighting the tiger.

ROBINSON'S PRINTING INKS.—In our advertising columns will be found a number of extracts from newspapers complimenting the Printing Ink manufactured at the Gray's Ferry Printing Ink Works, Philadelphia, C. E. Robinson proprietor. We have been using the ink manufactured at these works for a year past, and it has always proved satisfactory. Mr. Robinson deserves the encouragement and patronage of the press, and of printers generally, for the following good and sufficient reasons, viz: First. He was the first to put down the price of printing ink to a reasonable figure. Second. This ink equals, if it does not surpass in quality that of any other manufacturer, while his prices are as low as any other; third, Mr. Robinson is one of the most pleasant and accommodating gentlemen to deal with that we have ever met with; besides, he is a newspaper man, he also manufactures the most superior and desirable qualities of job ink, his best qualities being unexcelled by any other manufactured anywhere.

From the Phillipsburg, Pa., Journal.

This issue of the "Journal" is printed with ink from Gray's Ferry Printing Ink Works, Philadelphia, and greatly to our satisfaction, it surpasses any we have heretofore used. It deserves the high encomiums showered upon it by the press. June 21-1t.

COUGHS, SORE THROAT, ETC.

No medicine or treatment can excel the powerful curative power of

WHITE PULMONIC BALSAM.

It cures with a rapidity unequalled by any other remedy offered for throat and lung diseases. It is recommended by over 2,000 persons in Wilmington, and hundreds in Philadelphia, Baltimore and other cities and communities throughout the country. Mr. Pennington, of Wilmington, Illinois, writes that there is not (with a few exceptions) a family in that city who will be without it if possible to procure it. Such is its popularity wherever it is known—and this popularity arises from the fact that it universally cures all who use it. There is no case of

COUGHS, COLDS, SORE THROAT,

ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, CROUP,

BLOOD SPITTING, HOARSENESS, and even Pulmonary Consumption, where the system is not broken down with the wear of the disease, or pretended medicine, or inexperienced advice, that this Balsam will not cure if carefully used according to directions. We guarantee it all we represent it to, and invite a trial from the afflicted everywhere. Price 50 cts., med um size, and $1 for large size bottles. Prepared only by

On the Wing.

The Lewistown jail is being renovated.

The furnace at Hopewell turns out forty tons of charcoal iron a week.

Two snakes, eleven feet long, were killed near Rays Hill, Bedford county, last week.

The new Methodist church at Bedford is to be 75 feet by 45 feet, and is to cost about $12,000.

Iron ore has been discovered in the vicinity of Burnt Cabins, near the lower end of this county.

Bellefonte and Altoona were inundated by recent rains, and considerable damage done.

A Mrs. Phillips was drowned near Waynesburg while in the heroic act of saving her son from drowning.

It took seventeen men and a dozen of dogs to butcher a 165 pound bear, in Fayette county, the other week.

The Bedford Inquirer met with the unhappy luck of reducing one of its forms into "pi," the other week.

The Methodists intend regaling their Sabbath School scholars at McCahan's Grove on Thursday a week.

The people of Bedford, to some extent, have dabbled in the oil enterprise. One man has an income of thousands per month.

A planing mill belonging to A. A. Barker, in Ebensburg, was burned to the ground recently. Loss $8,000—insurance $4,000.

The family of Mr. W. L. Gordon, of Howard, Center county, partook of something at dinner of the nature of poison, and were all made sick.

The Sabbath School Convention which met at Harrisburg last week, was largely represented by delegates from all parts of the State.

It is expected that a Sabbath School Convention of representatives of all the schools in this county, will be held in this place at an early day.

M. L. Littlefield has withdrawn from the Juniata Sentinel, and is succeeded by B. E. Schweier. Mr. S. has our best wishes in his new relation.

A man named John Ryan, at Prospect Hill, Cambria county, was killed recently by foolishly attempting to jump on a passenger train as it was pulling out from the depot.

Mr. J. Gorton, of Philipsburg, lost a hand and a portion of one of his arms by having it caught between two bits, in a planing mill. The arm was amputated.

The census-taker has revealed the surprising (to us) fact that the West Ward of our borough contains only 1640 inhabitants. The total population of the borough will not be more than 3200.

As a P. S. to last week's announcement about Grady's monkey, we learn that it committed suicide by strangling itself with a rope with which its captors had tied it. Vale!

The article of "H. C. B." on our first page, presents the subject of Intemperance in a new, powerful and interesting manner, and we advise our readers to give it a careful perusal.

Miss E. W. has the thanks of the Globe fraternity for a delicious cake. May her cup of happiness be full to overflowing, and may she receive a crown of eternal joy!

The Pennsylvania State Teachers' Association will hold its next annual session in the Court House, in the city of Lancaster, on the 9th, 10th and 11th of August.

Somebody's darling was in town on Saturday evening, and when he went home he had "joost about so mooch as vat he call shtreaknine as he could walk mit."

The Huntingdon Light Infantry gave a hop at the Cottage on Friday and Saturday evenings last. We think there were too many "hops" of a striking kind for graceful movement, among some of the "gallants."

Sufficient money has been guaranteed to complete the construction of the Lewisburg & Spruce Creek Railroad, and we are glad to learn that it is to be placed under contract immediately.

Indiana, Pa., is agitated. The court last week refused to grant licenses to sell liquor in that borough, and the hotel keepers, per consequence, have unanimously agreed to close their doors and do no business till their ancient right is restored.

A boy named Henry Gudekunst, aged fourteen, was killed near Middle Lancaster, Butler county, the other week, by being dragged over the ground by a young colt which he was leading to water, he having thoughtlessly fastened the halter around his wrist.

Two lively brothers, aged 53 and 60 years, living in Westmoreland county, lately fell in love with the same woman and fought about it. The senior is now looking for a finger which he lost in the encounter, while the junior is "chawed up" to the extent that he is scarcely recognizable by his most intimate friends.

A Little Talk.

"Revolutions never go backward," neither do improvements in Huntingdon. During the past three years many beautiful edifices have been erected in the old part of the town, while in West Huntingdon, where but one house stood, a few years ago, there are now a hundred or more, and lots have been sold for a mile above the old landmarks. Two planing mills, two or three stores, a wagon shop, and numerous beautiful dwellings, now adorn this part of the borough, and it promises ere long to be the most populous part of the town. We have admired the enterprise of the people in the taste they have displayed in decorating the surroundings of their dwellings with well-planned and neatly-kept gardens, now in full bloom, and congratulate our borough in getting such good citizens. The names of the streets have a Philadelphia ring—Chestnut, Walnut, Spruce, Pine, Cypress—while Grant and Scott are not neglected with honor. The town is well laid out, having an alley back of each street, and as the buildings gradually rear their proportions, eastward and northward, the utility of this plan is more fully illustrated. Everything that is necessary—air, water, soil and facilities—conspires to make this a desirable location, and we hope to see our prediction fulfilled, in a few years, of this being the business part of the town.

There is only one drawback, which we hope to see overcome before long, and that is the want of manufactories. These we should have, as they will bring mechanics and laboring men, and help improve the business advantages of the town. Our business men should encourage every scheme that will establish manufactories, as without them a town is dead, and West Huntingdon is just the place to erect them.

Fashion.—The New York Standard begins its fashion article with the following sensible hit at both sexes. We commend it to our readers for its truthfulness:

Dress! Dress! Dress!

"Fashions!" said a brute of a man in our hearing the other day, "are an invention of Satan to ensnare the souls of foolish women."

The man of ideas was very elaborately arrayed in all the glories of fine broadcloth, immaculate linen, and flashing diamonds.

We viewed him critically a moment, then said:

"Judging from your appearance, sir, his infernal majesty has also an eye to masculine souls. Don't you ever feel afraid?"

He laughed, shrugged his broad shoulders, and walked off leaving our query unanswered.

It is laughable to note the superior air with which men criticize women's vanity. They never seem to think that the same faults which they attribute to the gentler sex can be brought directly back upon themselves. "People who live in glass houses must not throw stones;" and gentlemen who patronize fashionable tailors, bootmakers and jewelers must not find fault with wives or sisters for following their extremely followable example.

The Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine.

In another column will be found the advertisement of Messrs. Peterson & Carpenter, the enterprising and energetic agents of the Celebrated Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine, whose office is located at 914 Chestnut Street, Philada. The Wheeler and Wilson is the leading standard family machine. It took the only gold medal at the great Exposition Universelle awarded to sewing machines, and its name is a household word in both Europe and America. It requires therefore no "puffing" and we merely wish to call attention of the public to the immensity of the number of these machines that have been sold; over 450,000.—Comment is unnecessary.

LaFayette College.

The friends of this institution will observe that the coming commencement will be one month earlier than usual—Wednesday, June 29. Tuesday, 28th, will be occupied with the reunion of the Literary societies at 9 a. m. Meeting of the Alumni Association at 2 p. m., and oration before the Literary Society by Rev. Charles Elliott, D. Dr. Cattell is now on his way home, and his presence will give increased interest to the always attractive commencements at LaFayette. Excursion tickets on the Reading and North Penn'a Railroad.

☞ "Modes and Manners for Matrons, Maids and Men," is the Musical title of a new Philadelphia Magazine, devoted to fashion and literature. A serial story of American life is commenced, and the fashions, instead of being a mere relish of European styles are a lively description of the popular costumes of our promenades. Price, ten cents a copy, or one dollar a year. Published by J. B. Dobbins, No. 426 North Eighth street, Philadelphia.

ADDRESS
NERVOUS AND DEBILITATED.
WHOSE SUFFERINGS HAVE BEEN PROTRACTED FROM HIDDEN CAUSES, AND WHOSE CASES REQUIRE
PROMPT TREATMENT.
TO RENDER EXISTENCE DESIRABLE

If you are suffering, or have suffered, from involuntary discharges, what effect does it produce upon your general health? Do you feel weak, debilitated, easily tired? Does a little extra exertion produce palpatation of the heart? Does your liver, or urine organs, or your kidneys, get out of order? Is your urine sometimes thick, milky or ropy, or is it ropy on settling? Or does a thick scum rise to the top? Or is a sediment at the bottom after it has stood awhile? Do you have spells of short breathing or dyspepsia? Are your bowels constipated? Do you have spells of fainting, or rushes of blood to the head? Is your memory impaired? Is your mind constantly dwelling on this subject? Do you feel dull, listless, moping, tired of company, of life? Do you wish to be left alone, to get away from everybody? Does any little thing make you start or jump? Is your sleep broken or restless? Is the lustre of your eye as bright? Do you enjoy yourself in society as well? Do you pursue your business with the same energy? Do you feel as much confidence in yourself? Are your spirits dull and flagging, given to fits of melancholy? If so, do not lay it to your liver or dyspepsia. Have you rest less nights? Your back weak, your knees weak, and have but little appetite, and you attribute this to dyspepsia or liver complaint?

Now, reader, self-abuse, venereal diseases badly cured, and sexual excesses, are all capable of producing a weakness of the generative organs. The organs of generation, when in perfect health, make the man. Do you ever think that those bold, defiant, energetic, persevering, successful business men are always those whose organs are in perfect health? You never hear such men complain of being melancholy, of nervousness, of palpitation of the heart. They are never afraid they cannot succeed in business; they don't become sad and discouraged, they are always polite and pleasant in company of ladies, and look you and them right in the face—none of your downcast looks or any other meanness about them. I do not mean those who keep the organs inflated by running to excess. Those will not only ruin their constitution, but those they do business with or for.

How many men, from badly cured diseases, from the effects of self abuse and excesses, have brought about that state of weakness in those organs that has reduced the general system so much as to induce almost every other disease—idiocy, lunacy, paralysis, spinal affections, suicide, and almost every form of disease humanity is heir to—and the real cause of the trouble scarcely ever suspected, and have doctored for all but the right one.

ROSADALIS
THIS Great American Health Restorer, purifies the blood and cures Scrofula, Syphilis, Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Diseases of Women and All Chronic Affections of the Blood, Liver and Kidneys. Recommended by the Medical Faculty and thousands of our best citizens.
Read the testimony of Physicians and patients who have used Rosadalis and, for our Rosadalis Guide to Health or Almanac for this year, which we publish for gratuitous distribution; it will give you much valuable information.
Dr. R. W. Carr, of Baltimore says:
I take pleasure in recommending your Rosadalis as a very powerful alterative. I have used it in two cases with happy results—one in case of secondary syphilis, in which the patient pronounced himself cured after having taken five bottles of your medicine. The other is a case of scrofula of long standing, which is rapidly improving under its use; and the indications are that the patient will soon recover. I have carefully examined the formulaby which your Rosadalis is made, and find it an excellent compound of all alterative ingredients.
Dr. Sparks, of Nicholasville, Ky., says he has used Rosadalis in cases of scrofula and secondary Syphilis with satisfactory results—as a cleaner of the blood I know no better remedy.
Samuel G. McFadden, Murfreesboro, Tennessee, says:
I have used seven bottles of Rosadalis, and am entirely cured of Rheumatism; send me four bottles, as I wish it for my brother, who has scrofulous sore eyes.
Benjamin Bechtol, of Lima, Ohio, writes, I have suffered for twenty years with an intolerable pain over my body; a short time since I purchased a bottle of Rosadalis and it effected a perfect cure.
Rosadalis is sold by John Read and S. S. Smith, Huntingdon, Pa., and Druggists generally.

WHAT I KNOW OF FARMING.

BY HORACE GREELEY.

XX.

BONES—PHOSPHATES—GUANO.

I hate to check improvement or chill the glow of Faith; yet I do so keenly apprehend that many of our people, especially among the Southern cottongrowers, are squandering money on Commercial Fertilizers, that I am bound to utter my note of warning, even though it should pass wholly unheeded. Let me make my position as clear as I can.

I live in a section which has been cultivated for more than two centuries, while its proximity to a great city has tempted to crop it incessantly, exhaustively. Wheat while its original surface soil of six or twelve inches of vegetable mold (mainly composed of decayed forestleaves) remained; then Corn and Oats; at length, Milk, Beef and Apples—have exhausted the hill-sides and gentler slopes of Westchester County, except where they have been kept in heart by judicious culture and liberal fertilizing; and even here, that subtle element Phosphorus, which enters minutely but necessarily into the composition of every animal and nearly every vegetable structure, has been gradually drawn away in Grain, in Milk, in Bones, and not restored to the soil by the application of ordinary manures. I am convinced that a field may be so manured as to grow three tuns of Hay per acre, yet so destitute of Phosphorus that a sound, healthy animal cannot be grown therefrom. For two centuries, the tillers of Westchester County knew nothing of Chemistry or Phosphorus, and allowed the unvalued bones of their animals to be exported to fatten British meadows without an effort to retain them. Hence, it has become absolutely essential that we buy and apply Phosphates, even though the price be high; for our land can no longer do without them. Wherever a steer or heifer can occasionally be caught gnawing or mumbling over an old bone, there Phosphates are indispensable, no matter at what cost.—Better pay $100 per tun for a dressing of one hundred pounds of Bone per acre than try to do without.

But no lands recently brought into cultivation—no lands where the bones of the animals fed thereon have been allowed, for unnumbered years past, to mingle with the soil—can be equally hungry for Phosphates; and I doubt that any cotton-field in the South will ever return an outlay of even $50 per tun for any Phosphatic fertilizer whatever. That any preparation of Bone, or whereof Bone is a principal element, will increase the succeeding crops, is undoubted; but that it will ever return its cost and a decent margin of profit, is yet to be demonstrated to my satisfaction.

No doubt, there are special cases in which the application even of Peruvian Guano at $90 per tun is advisable. A compost of Muck, Lime, &c, equally efficient, might be far cheaper; but months would be required to prepare and perfect it, and meantime the farmer would lose his crop, or fail to make one. If a tun of Guano, or of some expensive Phosphate, will give him six or eight acres of Clover where he would otherwise have little or none, and he needs that Clover to feed the team wherewith he is breaking up and fitting his farm to grow a good crop next year, he may wisely make the purchase and application, even though he may be able to compost for next year's use twice the value of fertilizers for the precise cost of this.—But I am so thorough in my devotion to "home industry," that I hold him an unskillful farmer who cannot, nine times in ten, make, mainly from materials to be found on or near his farm, a pile of compost for $100 that will add more to the enduring fertility of his farm than anything he can bring from a distance at a cost of $150.

Understand that this is a general rule, and subject, like all general rules, to exceptions. Gypsum, I think every farmer should buy; Lime also, if his soil needs it; Phosphates, in some shape, if past ignorance or folly has allowed that soil to be despoiled of them; Wood Ashes, if any one can be found so brainless as to sell them; Marl of course, where it is found within ten miles; Guano very rarely, and mainly when something is needed to make a crop before coarser and colder fertilizers can be brought into a condition of fitness for use; but the general rule I insist on is this: A good farmer will, in the course of twenty years, make at least $10 worth of fertilizers for every dollar's worth he buys from any dealer, unless it be the sweeping or other excretions of some not distant city.

I have used Guano frequently, and, though it has generally made its mark, I never yet felt sure that it returned me a profit over its cost. Phosphates have done better, especially where applied to Corn in the hill, either at the time of planting or later; yet my strong impression is that Flour of Bone, applied broadcast and freely, especially when Wheat or Oats are sown on a field that is to be laid down to grass, pays better and more surely than anything else I order from the City, Gypsum, and possibly Oyster-Shell Lime, excepted.

My experience can be no safe guide for others, since it is not proved that the anterior condition and needs of their soils are precisely like those of mine. I apprehend that Guano has not had a fair trial on my place—that carelessness in pulverizing or in application has caused it to "waste its sweetness on the desert air," or that a drouth following its application has prevented the due development of its virtues. And still my impression that Guano is the brandy of vegetation, supplying to plants stimulus rather than nutrition, is so clear and strong that it may not easily be effaced. It seems to me plainly absurd to send ten thousand miles for this stimulant, when this or any other great city annually poisons its own atmosphere and the adjacent waters with excretions which are of very similar character and value, and which Science and Capital might combine to utilize at less than half the cost of like elements in the form of Guano.

My object in this paper is to incite experiment and careful observation. No farmer should absolutely trust aught but his own senses. A Rhode Islander once assured me that he applied to four acres of thin, slaty gravel one hundred pounds per acre of Nitrate of Soda which cost him $4 per hundred, and obtained therefrom four additional tuns of good Hay, worth $15 per tun: Not profit (after allowing for the cost of making the Hay,) say $30. He might not be so fortunate on a second trial, and there may not be another four acres of the earth's surface where Nitarte of Soda would do so well; but, should I ever have a fair opportunity, I mean to see what a little of that Nitrate will do for me. I hope farmers may more and more be induced to conform practice to the Apostolic precept, "Prove all things: Hold fast that which is good." No one's success or failure in a particular instance should be conclusive with others, because of the infinite diversity of antecedent and attendent circumstances; but if every thrifty farmer would give to each of the commercial fertilizers — Lime, Gypsum, Guano, Raw Bone, Phosphates, Ashes, Salt, Marl, &c.—such a careful trial as he might, observing closely and recording carefully the results, we should soon have a mass of facts and results, wherefrom deductions might be drawn of signal practical value to the present and to future generations.

"This is what I call capital punishment," as the boy said when his mother shut him in the closet among the preserves.

"Bob," said a facetious farmer to his son, "we had a pretty hard day's work yesterday; now let's have a game of chopping wood."

McGUIRE'S

SPANISH HAIR DRESSER

FOR PROMOTING THE GROWTH, BEAUTIFYING THE HAIR,

And rendering it dark and glossy. No other compound possesses the peculiar properties which so exactly suit the various conditions of the human hair. The use of this oil as a hair dresser has been universal in every section of the country in the Spanish Main for centuries.—No preparation of art could give that elegant luxuriance and abundance of hair which have so often been the admiration of travelers in Spain. This oil is highly and delicately perfumed, forming an article unrivaled in excellence and upon which the Spanish people for many years have set its seal of enduring approval.

McGUIRE'S

Mexican Wild Flowers Shampoo Lotion

For removing dandruff and scurf from the head, whitening and perfuming the skin. This article is entirely different from anything of the kind ever offered in this country and is warranted free from all poisonous substances This valuable lotion was used by the Emperor Maximilian, and Empress Carlotta of Mexico, and universally used by Mexicans for three hundred years. As a wash for the head—it is cooling, cleansing and refreshing.—When thus used it at once relieves headache.

McGUIRE'S

WILD FLOWERS FOR THE TEETH.

All those who are in favor of white teeth and a pleasant and perfumed breath, should at once use McGuire's Wild Flowers for the Teeth. All these preparations are put up in the most elegant and ornamental manner. We make no exception in saying that they are an ornament to a lady's toilet table, and none complete without them.

Warranted satisfactory or money refunded. Dealers will bear this in mind. Sold by all respectable Druggists in the United States and Canadas. Address orders to

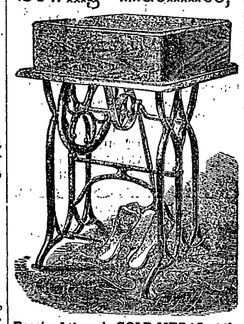
WHEELER & WILSON'S HIGHEST PREMIUM LOCK-STITCH Sewing Machines,



Received the only GOLD MEDAL at the PARIS EXPOSITION, 1867.

They are adapted to all kinds of Family Sewing, and to the use of Seamstresses, Dressmakers, Tailors, Manufacturers of Shirts, Collars, Skirts, Cloaks, Mantillas, Clothing, Hats, Caps, Corsets, Linen Goods, Umbrellas, Parasols, etc. They work equally well upon silk, linen, woolen and cotton goods, with silk, cotton or linen thread. They will seam, quilt, gather, hem, full, cord, braid, bind, and perform every species of sewing, making a beautiful and perfect stitch, alike on both sides of the article sewed.

The qualities which recommend them are:
1. Beauty and excellence of stitch, alike on both sides of the fabric sewed.
2. Strength, firmness and durability of seam, that will not rip nor ravel.
3. Economy of Thread.
4. Attachments and wide range of application to purposes and materials.
5. Compactness and elegance of model and finish.
6. Simplicity and thoroughness of construction.
7. Speed, ease of operation and management, and quietness of movement.

Instructions free to all. Machines kept in repair one year free of charge.

READY ROOFING

Suitable for all Buildings, Dwellings, Barns, Churches Factories, &c., and for all climates; equally adapted to flat or steep roofs, and can be applied by any ordinary workman.

THE READY ROOFING

Is more durable than tin, and does not cost one-half as much. It is cheaper than shingles, far more durable, and fire-proof. It is made of the heaviest fabric ever used for the purpose, and is put up in rolls ready for shipment to any part of the world. Send for circular and samples (sent free.)

We also manufacture

GRANITE CEMENT,

For repairing all kinds of leaky roofs, chimneys, sky lights, &c. This Roofing Cement forms a permanent adhesive coating over the whole surface of all roofs, whether tin, shingle or composition, completely closing up leakages, and being composed largely of ground granite, which sets and hardens; and soon becomes an artificial Slate or Stone covering.

ROOF PAINT,

For coating Tin and all kinds of metal and composition roofs. It will not run, crack, or peel off, but form a permanent and perfect protection, wherever placed. It is furnished at half the cost, and possesses twice the durability of the common oil paints used for such purposes.

SOLDIERS' HEIRS, ATTENTION!

The act of Congress approved March 2, 1867, gives to Heirs of Soldiers who died prisoners of war, for the time the soldier was so held a prisoner, at the rate of twenty-five cents per day, to be paid in the following order: 1st. To the widow, if unmarried; 2d. To the children; 3d. To the parents, to both jointly if they are living, if either is dead, to the survivor; 4th. To the brothersand sisters.

COMMUTATION FOR RATIONS,

The act of February 28, 1867, provides for the refunding of the $300 Commutation Money, where the same person was again drafted, and was required to enter the service or furnish a substitute.

DISCHARGED SOLDIERS,

The act of March 2, 1867, also makes provisions for the payment of the

to such soldiers as have accidentally lost their discharges

All persons having any claims under any of the above mentioned Acts, or any other kind of claim against the United States or State Governments, can have them promptly collected, by addressing the undersigned. Information and advice cheerfully given to soldiers or their friends, free of charge.
